

Fads and Fashions--Other Good Sunday Reading Matter

(By Florence Fairbanks)

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Furs have been in great favor for several years and this year they promise to be even more in vogue than during the last few winter seasons. The craze for red fox, which reached its height earlier in the season, seems to be dying out. Women now seem to be inclined to give preference to racoon, skunk and fisher. One of the new things in the use of furs are the large collars which are wired to stand high and well away from the neck, but they are not as becoming as the shoulder pieces which leave part of the bare neck exposed and do not interfere with the shape of the head, which, today, must be very small.

Spotless ermine is again in fashion. The little black tails which gave the fur character and distinction remain in oblivion. It seems many hope they will return to fashion this winter, but the exploitation of new wraps and fur pieces kills that hope.

The Russian fur, kolinsky, is the choice of the modernists, but it has not much in the way of beauty to commend it to the public. It is a whitish yellow that looks very well with certain deep shades of velvet, but is trying against the face. Fables, skunk, fisher, racoon, and opossum remain fashionable, with ermine at the top, for wraps that are combined with velvet.

Touches of fur are used on coat suits, especially all those of black or leather color, which need some light touch of dark brown to give depth to their tone. Skunk will be attached to the coat as a small collar that fastens closely around the neck, and as two-inch cuffs on close fitting sleeves.

Velvet gowns have for a long time been the long Russian tunic, or on the skirt, if not on both, but the absence of open coats or revers of any kind keeps them from having much chance to play with fur on the street suit. On evening gowns fur is used sparingly. A tunic of tulle will be run with an inch-wide strip of skunk, and one of those new loose Japanese collars may have a fall of lace held in by a strip of ermine, but that is all.

There are two new muffs brought out for the winter, both of which will be found acceptable. One is a barrel-shaped affair, loose and flexible, which has a long strap of fur attached to each end to serve as a handle by which to carry it. It is not wide, and is slung over the arm or shoulder. It is not long enough to go around the neck, but some women, undoubtedly, will have it lengthened, and substitute these fur straps for ribbon. The other muff is entirely round and gives one the impression of a shield. It is made of velvet and fur, usually of black and white intermingled, and is carried just in front of the waist.

The envelope muff evidently will be in high favor, as some of the smartest houses are showing them. They are made also of velvet and fur, which is one of the favorite combinations of the hour. One sees it on wraps, gowns, hats and muffs.

The Russian blouse, so popular one and two years ago, is again worn. As a garment, it evidently made a very favorable impression. All the great fashion houses show it in some form. Here and there it is eccentric and brilliant, such as bright red with pearl shaped sleeves of black velvet, black velvet skirt, and an ornamental belt finished with old silver in front. The significant part in the popularity of this garment is the lengthening of the waist line, which is obvious on every side where street suits are concerned. Possibly it is because the belt is so wide that the dressmakers feel they must lengthen the waistline in order to give the figure more grace.

Whatever the reason, the fact remains that the waist line on coats is two inches below the normal and that this straight line makes the waist appear twice as large as it did, which is an effect women strive to produce. In fact, if it were not for hips, women could easily go without corsets altogether if they wear the gowns of the present time.

Whether or not American women will take up the Russian idea of wearing a blouse of one color over a skirt of another is difficult to tell. Certainly no one can wear a Turkish blue or a Japanese red tunic with a black skirt on American streets, but there should be no prejudice against it as a costume for luncheon or afternoon affairs. It would not be harmful in the least if American women would enliven their costumes with brilliant Russian blouses trimmed with fur and held below the waist with wide belts and barbaric clasps.

Another touch of color which is introduced into afternoon coat suits is a brilliant cord laced through the seams of the jacket. In one instance the original costume was of bright, dark blue velvet, with a long coat held in by a wide band below the waist, and each seam held together with a dull red Japanese cord, run through round buttonholes worked with the same color of red in flous.

Even when one wears gowns of sombre colors it is quite easy to be brilliant by using any of the new things, as so much of the skirt shows these days, with the slash in front or back which is put in the middle of drapery, and is therefore not crude, and in the hem that is turned upwards on skirts as well as coats. The last is a clever touch. The Futurist findings are not especially fashionable, but nearly all the great color artists arrive at some way in which they can present a brilliant contrast, by using a lining that looks like a facing to the material.

One of the new materials of the season is a wonderful cloth with a surface like camel hair—cashmere which has broche flowers in velvet scattered over its surface. This stuff is very supple; it is also extremely costly. But the loveliest mantles and even whole dresses are made of it. Camel hair cashmere is very popular this winter. It is combined with mirror velvet and also with broad satin and plain taffetas. On almost all the new models for street wear bands of fur are freely introduced, especially skunk and fox, the latter in many different shades.

Faced cloth is once more in great demand. It is being used by the leading designers for suits of a rather dressy order, and it is combined with broche velvet and, of course, with bands of fur.

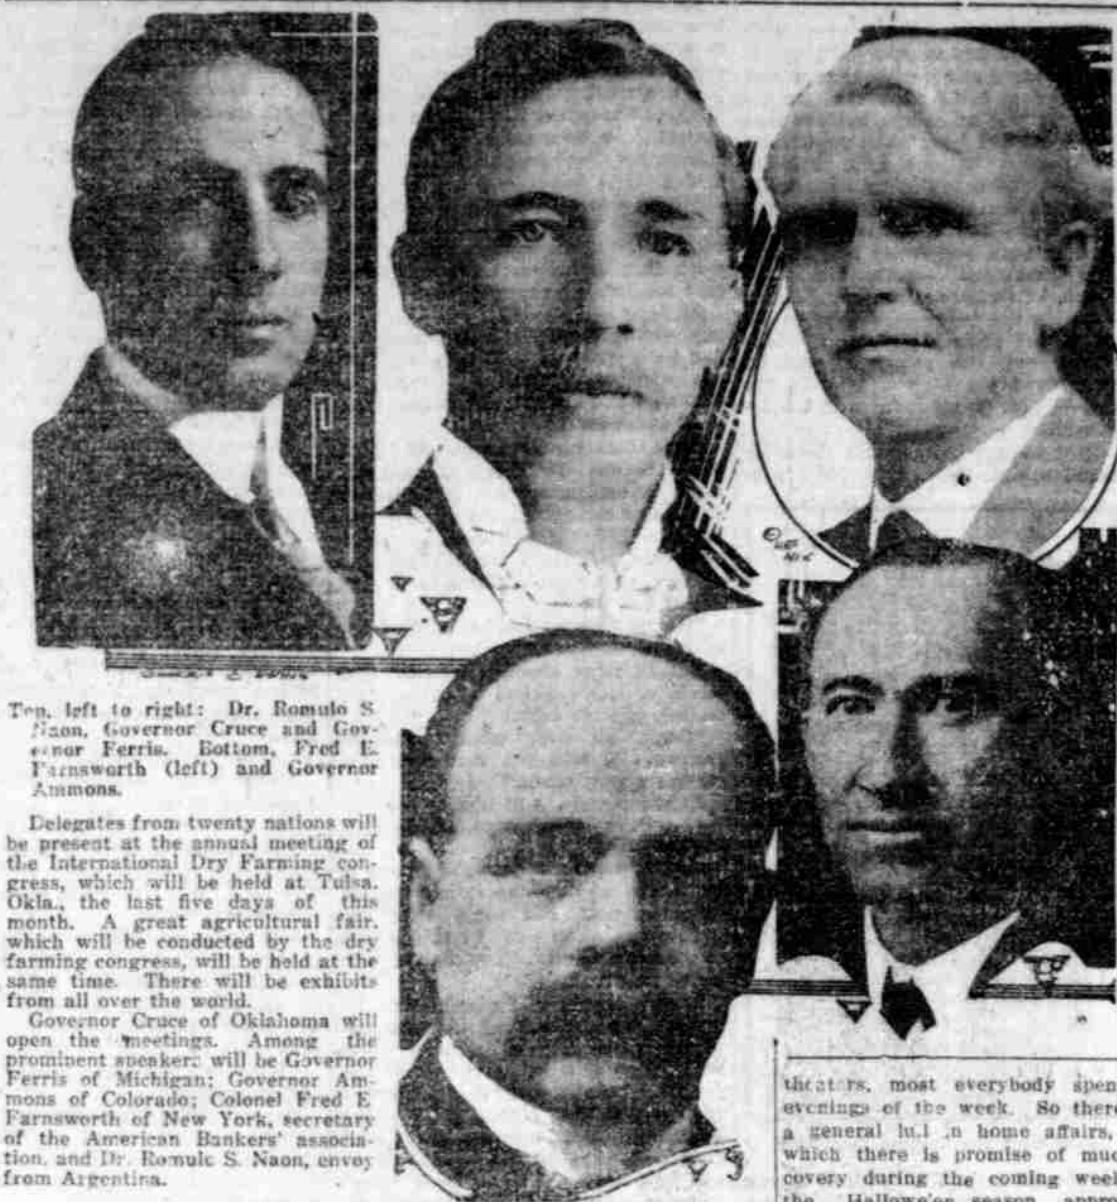

The two most popular colors of the day for outdoor suits are "violet de monseigneur" and tomato red, and side by side with these striking shades we find a peculiar tawny orange, which gives splendid effects.

COSTUME OF LACE AND WHITE CREPON

This pretty costume is made of delicate lace and white crepon. The underdress is of white crepon. The surplus of the lace blouse is finished with a lace frill. The skirt is headed and festoons of beads hang over the lace tunic at the front. The skirt of crepon is gathered to the waist band in back and is otherwise plain.

DELEGATES FROM TWENTY NATIONS AT DRY FARMING CONGRESS; NOTED SPEAKERS ON PROGRAM; EXHIBITS FROM WORLD OVER

Delegates from twenty nations will be present at the annual meeting of the International Dry Farming congress, which will be held at Tulsa, Okla., the last five days of this month. A great agricultural fair, which will be conducted by the dry farming congress, will be held at the same time. There will be exhibits from all over the world.

Governor Cruce of Oklahoma will open the meetings. Among the prominent speakers will be Governor Ferris of Michigan; Governor Ammons of Colorado; Colonel Fred E. Farnsworth of New York, secretary of the American Bankers' association; and Dr. Romulo S. Naon, envoy from Argentina.

When generously trimmed with skunk or black fox. The delicate pastel tints are kept almost exclusively for afternoon gowns and dinner dresses.

For street wear not brown, deep red, in several rich shades, Egyptian and raven wing blue, smoke gray and black are the tints most in favor.

able conditions prevailing for the forecast of October, hopes are entertained for November. Late reports indicate that the crop will be larger than was indicated by reports received two weeks ago.

The effect of the slow crop movement on ocean rates has naturally been at variance with the quoted prices subjected to a scaling down by agents who were in need of freight to complete ships that were partly loaded and were due to sail. The future trend of the market is apparently steady, with few signs of a break.

Other than cotton, is picking up. Lumber, logs and cotton seed products being most prominent. Under the new tariff regulations the import movement is increasing, and crumpled business seems to be gradually picking up.

But the clouds are breaking. A period of dry cool weather is setting in and it is believed that this will have a tendency to overcome the recent backwardness of the movement of the crop, and despite the unfavorable bake and bring two pumpkin pies, as Pumpkin pie and good coffee are to be the main features. A good old fashioned witch has been procured who has a whole cauldron full of fortunes to give for the asking. A great number of the games given over for Halloween will be arranged including a fine musical program.

AUTOMOBILE TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. J. Scott and little daughter, Ruth, leave this morning for Tombstone, where they will visit friends and relatives, returning by way of Benson tomorrow evening. They will make the trip in Mr. Scott's new Studebaker.

FROM PLEASURABLE TRIP

Mrs. James E. Long returned during the week from a visit with her mother at the old family home at Natural Bridge, Va., where Mrs. Long went in June. They spent the month of August together at White Sulphur Springs and in early September enjoyed Old Point Comfort, stopping for a visit of a week with friends in Richmond, enroute home. Mr. Long is looking for his mother to arrive from Virginia in December to remain through the winter.

ATTRACTIONS MONOPOLIZE

A very quiet week in social circles, in respect to the extension of entertainment by individuals, was last week. The reason is found in the fact that the Moore Bazaar claimed the attention of throngs each night, while theater parties were also in vogue, the light opera season at the Orpheum claiming a great deal of attention. Either at Moore hall or the theaters, most everybody spent the evenings of the week. So there was a general lull in home affairs, from which there is promise of much recovery during the coming week, for the Halloween season approaches rapidly and with it a number of home and public affairs appropriate to the season.

GOING TO THE MOUNTAINS

For a day of recreation in the mountains, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hill, their daughters, Grace and Margaret, and Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Edwards and James and Howard Wilson, left last evening for the Huachuca in automobiles. They will return to the city tomorrow morning. While out it is the intention of the party to have a real camping expedition to which end they took along a complete camping outfit. Incidentally all hands will join in a hunting expedition during the day from which they expect to return to camp with the materials for a fine game supper of which the piece de resistance is to be quail.

NATURE'S REMEDIES FOR DISEASE

Every Fall in olden times the family medicine chest was replenished with roots, herbs and barks, nature's remedies for disease. Sculpap for nervousness, Pennyroyal for colds, Clover blossoms for the blood, Thoroughwort for colds, Wormwood and Balm of Gilead Buds for sprains, and so on. It is interesting to note that the most successful remedy for female ills the world has ever known had its origin nearly forty years ago from roots and herbs and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made today in immense quantities from those same roots and herbs with extreme accuracy, care and cleanliness. The standard remedy for female ills.

NO TICKETS WILL BE ISSUED TO STATE FAIR

PHOENIX, Oct. 25.—There will be no general admission of grandstand tickets sold at the Arizona state fair grounds this year, as coin registering turnstiles have been installed and the front entrance and at the grandstand.

Adults must come with half a dollar and children with quarters instead of tickets.

You drop your money in a slot and the automatic self-registering, self-calculating turnstile does the rest. The turnstiles cannot be fooled, and slick quarters and half dollars or Mexican money goes right on through, but you cannot enter. You simply lose your money as it will not be returned.

At the New York fair, Ohio state fair, Minnesota state fair and the California state fair these machines have been in use for several years and the fair officials are loud in their praise of the result achieved.

Licorice.

Licorice belongs to the pea or vetch family, and grows wild. The plant commonly reaching a height of about four feet. It is the long, straight root which is of commercial value. No means have been adopted for cutting the plant, which requires about three years to reach maturity or for improving its condition.

READ THIS BOOK, "THE HAIR AND ITS CARE"

Sent Free Upon Request

The Herpicide Company want every one to have a copy of their booklet telling how to take care of and possess nice hair. The booklet contains much valuable information on the subject of saving and cultivating the hair.

If the present-day men and women would begin to live up to the teachings of the little booklet it is doubtful if the next generation would find a bald-headed man or lady wearing false hair.

It is just as easy to have robust and beautiful hair as to have thin, scraggy hair or no hair at all. If the scalp is kept clean and free from dandruff the hair grows naturally and luxuriantly.

The booklet tells how this may be most effectively accomplished by the use of Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide destroys dandruff, frees the head from dirt and scarf skin. The hair becomes light, fluffy and beautiful.

Newbro's Herpicide is "the original remedy that kills the dandruff germ," for which there are many imitations and substitutes said to be just as good. Buy nothing but the original.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Send 10c in postage to The Herpicide Co., Dept. H, Detroit, Mich., and a nice sample will be sent with the booklet.

Applications obtained at the better barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

SAN SIMON NOTES

(Special Correspondence)

SAN SIMON, Oct. 25.—R. H. Pine, S. P. telephone operator at Bowie, and his wife, who is operator at Stelm, N. M., were here Tuesday on a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Currier.

Rolland Marrett, after having concluded a visit of several months with relatives at Nardin, Okla., returned home.

Mrs. Nita Horne Horne was an arrival Tuesday on train 9 from Morenci, on a visit with her parents. She expects to return to Morenci soon accompanied by her mother, who is to go for a visit.

Dr. and Mrs. G. V. Copp returned from an extended business trip, which included Paradise, Rodeo, Wilcox and other points nearby. And soon they will leave for their old home in Denver, Colo., to be absent for an indefinite length of time.

Mart Moore has sold out his farm on the Gila, and is moving, with his family, back to Paradise, where he will re-engage in the saloon business. A. Bedoya, Mr. Moore's father-in-law, is assisting in the moving, which is being done by wagon, overland.

Frank Holmes left for Chicago, on a business mission, expecting to return in about a week.

Alf. M. Bruce returned home Monday night after having been away for a couple of weeks, on business. He visited Courtland, Douglas and Bisbee, all of which cities he reported lively.

In order that his children might attend school here, John A. Bendele, formerly in business in San Simon but now a rancher 12 miles south-west, near the mouth of Wood canyon has moved his family to town.

Will Buck has returned from El Paso, where he placed his wife in the hospital. Mrs. Buck is doing nicely, but will remain there for a while longer, with little Beryl.

Facts in Nature

For centuries it has been known that Nature's most valuable health giving agents for the cure of disease are found in our American forests. Over forty years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the "Invalids" Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y., used the powdered extracts as well as the liquid extracts of native medicinal plants, such as Bloodroot and Queen's root, Golden Seal and Stone root, Cherry bark and Mandrake, for the cure of blood diseases. This prescription as put up in liquid form was called and has enjoyed a large sale for all those years in every drug store in the land. You can now obtain the powdered extract in sugar-coated tablet form of your medicine dealer, or send 5c in one-cent postage stamps for trial box to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and tablets will be mailed, postage prepaid.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, red blood, invigorates the stomach, liver and bowels and through them the whole system. This affection, blotches, boils, pimples and eruptions—result of bad blood—are eradicated by this alternative extract—as thousands have testified.

Send 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only on a free copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1608 pages, clothbound. ADDRESS DR. R. V. PIERCE, BUFFALO, N. Y.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Ladies! Try This! Darkens Beautifully and Nobody Can Tell—Brings Back Its Glaze and Thickness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness, no less. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Advertisement.
